South Carolina Annual Conference The United Methodist Church Commission on Archives and History

Guidelines for records transfer for disaffiliating churches

The Commission on Archives and History is responsible for maintaining the records of closed churches, or of former United Methodist congregations.

Therefore, the commission requests that, prior to disaffiliation, a local church deposit electronic copies of their most important records with the Conference Archives, which will maintain them in their online repository.

What records should be transferred to the Archives?

The most important records of the local church are the membership records, and administrative records.

- 1. Membership records should be the first priority. These include: The membership register, or any registers of baptisms, marriages, transfers, funeral or death records. There is no time limit this should include all available records as researchers in the future may come looking for something from a long time ago.
- 2. Administrative records are the second priority. These include: Charge Conference reports should be sufficient for this requirement.
- 3. Property records are the third priority: These include: Copies of deeds. That is, presuming you have those.
- 4. If you have a published local church history and you have not sent us a copy, we will be happy to be sure to keep one in our collection. If you don't have one of those, that's OK. If you have a pamphlet-length history that you've used in the past, sending us a scanned copy is fine.

What we are not requesting: Program files, committee reports, bulletins and newsletters. You should be retaining those as part of the ongoing ministry of your church.

What format should you use to preserve these records?

The archives can accept pdfs of documents, or if the local church is not able to create pdfs., then jpegs are acceptable. Ideally, you should scan the documents at 300 ppi, and gray scale or color are both acceptable.

To arrange the transfer of your records, or if you have questions, please contact the conference archivist, Dr. Phillip Stone, by email at stonerp@wofford.edu, or by phone, at 864-597-4313.
